A SENATOR DEAD.

The Sudden Death of Senator Plumb a Prominent Topic

SERVICES IN THE SENATE

A Delegation from the Senate and House to Leave for Kansas with the Remains Possibilities of the Succession

WASHINGTON Dec 21 Senator Preston B Plumb of Kansas died here suddenly this forenoon yesterday of angina pectoris Senator Plumb has been unwell for the past several weeks but has not been confined to his bed until Saturday evening when his critical condition forced him to take to his room where he died about Half o clock Sunday morning

A TRIBUTE OF RESPECT

WASHINGTON Dec 21 To-day the United States senate the house of representatives the executive and judicial departments of the government, the representatives of foreign powers and his many friends among the Washington public, paid the last tribute of affection and respect to the memory of the late Senator Preston B Plumb This morning his remains were taken to the marble room, in the rear of the senate chamber where they were placed on a black catafalque in the center of the room

Soon after the casket was deposited in the marble room, a large number of persons gathered around the door, anxious to take a last look at the features of the dead senator but in view of the condition of the body it was deemed best not to expose them to view

The senate met at noon and after a prayer by Chaplain Butler, on motion of Mr Manderson, the reading of the journal was dispensed with and Mr Peffer rose and made the formal announcement of the death of Mr Plumb and offered the usual resolutions Senators Peffer, Dolph, Paddock, Hansom and Palmer were appointed a committee on the part of the senate to escort the remains of Senator Plumb to his former home in Kansas. The senate then on motion of Mr Sherman took a recess till 1 p. m

At 1 p. m the senate was called to order by the vice president.

Shortly before 1 o'clock the cabinet officers and assistant secretaries of the executive department began to arrive and were shown to the president's room. At 1 20 the committee of the house, escorting the dead senator, appeared at the main entrance and while all in the chamber stood up the procession moved up the aisle, the chaplain reciting the opening sentences of the funeral service, "I am the resurrection and the life," saith the Lord," and the casket, which was borne by capitol police, was deposited on the catafalque in front of the clerk's desk

There have been several changes in the personnel of the house committee that accompany the remains to Emporia. The speaker did not have an opportunity to consult all of the members of the committee he designated last night some of whom have found it impossible to go. As finally constituted, the committee consisted of Messrs Funston and Broderick of Kansas, Cate and Peel of Arkansas, Youmans of Michigan, Post of Illinois and Cogswell of Massachusetts. After the funeral services and while the whole mélange were standing in respect for the deceased the procession reformed and the dead senator was borne out to be taken to the railway station.

At 3 p. m. the vice president took the chair again with the two senators previously Mr. Allison and Mr. Gibson of Louisiana when a formal motion was made to adjourn and agreed to and the senate adjourned till to-morrow.

The congressional committee had a special car for their use during the trip. The two cars were attached to the Columbian express train which left the city at 3 35 o'clock The body is expected to arrive at Emporia, Kan Wednesday afternoon The home funeral services are to take place on Thursday.

FOR THE LAST JOURNEY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The funeral cortege of the late Senator Plumb reached the depot at 2.40 p. m., he being by the congressional committee and followed by a large number of senators and representatives. The congressional committee stood in line on the east side of the entrance with uncovered heads, and the casket, carried by the capitol police, and followed by members of the senate and house, was borne to the train The train left Washington at 3.35 and will reach Kansas City about 6 or 7 o'clock Wednesday morning. A stop of an hour will be made at Kansas City and the train will leave for Emporia about 9 o'clock Wednesday, reaching there Wednesday afternoon.

FUNERAL SERVICES AT TOPEKA

TOPEKA, Kan, Dec 21 —Arrangements were made today to hold funeral services at the capitol here over the remains of the late Senator Plumb. Mrs. Plumb was communicated with today by telegraph and she concurred in the plan The funeral train will arrive in Kansas City Wednesday morning. There it will be met by the state officers, led by Governor Humphrey, who will accompany it to Topeka At Topeka the body will lie in state for two hours after which funeral services will be held From Topeka the body will be conveyed to Emporia. There services at the home will be held Thursday morning and later at the First Congregational church, after which the interment will take place

INTERVIEW OF JOHN J. INGALLS

ATCHISON, Kan, Dec. 21.—In an interview to-day Ex-Senator Ingalls said in part It is a great pleasure to me, now that Senator Plumb has gone, to recall our intercourse, extending over so many years, dealing with so many complex and delicate affairs and to remember no strain nor scar; nothing that I would obliterate, no breach, even of courtesy nor formal decorum which might well enough occur in the hasty word of public life. Mr. Plumb's temperament was not such as to permit intimacy as near to him as I could really make it He was not by nature or habit a sentimentalist. There no gush nor pathos, no reverence nor reminiscence nor retrospection about him, but I think he gave me as much of his confidence as he ever gave anybody, and I found much in his life that was worthy of admiration. He lacked discipline and training in early years, and while he displayed immense energy, much of it was irregular and at random so that he did not accomplish as much as he might with steadier and more continuous force exerted in one direction. But his impulses were good, and I never heard him express a conviction that did not appear to be dictated by a sincere desire for the success of the Republican party and the welfare and honor of Kansas and the nation.

GOVERNOR HUMPHREY'S PLANS.

TOPEKA, Kan, Dec 21 —Governor Humphrey arrived at Topeka to-night to find delegations waiting to urge a successor to Plumb Hotel corridors, the state house and other public places have been alive with politicians discussing the possible successor The United Press correspondent to-night, Governor Humphrey said "I consider it very bad taste for friends of Senator Plumb to be discussing his successor before his body is buried. I shall not discuss the matter until after the funeral. Then I will carefully go over the entire field and select a man who will reflect most credit on the state and best serve the people, and who will be a credit to the Republican party"

When asked about Ingalls he said "If Senator Ingalls had remained steadfast to the Republican party and to his friends who went down with him there would be no other name mentioned."

The funeral train will arrive in Topeka at noon Wednesday where the remains will lie in state during the afternoon then they will be conveyed to Emporia for interment

POSSIBLE APPOINTEES

TOPEKA Kan Dec 21 The list of probable successors to the late Senator Plumb is increasing rapidly The candidates most prominently mentioned are Chief Justice Albert H Horton ex-Congressman R W Merrill, ex Congressman B Peters Geo R Peck general solicitor of the Santa Fe, ex Governor Thomas A Osborne, Benj Simpson and Geo T Anthony Justice Horton who has been more prominently mentioned than any other politician, stated this morning that under no circumstances would he accept the position if it was tendered him A personal enmity between Governor Humphrey and ex Senator Ingalls places Mr Ingalls out of the race

There is now some talk of Governor Humphrey resigning making Lieutenant governor Felt governor, who could appoint Mr Humphrey senator Neither Mr Humphrey nor Mr Felt would consent to be interviewed concerning the rumors Mr Humphrey said he would not even confer on the situation at all until after the obsequies and intimated that any candidate who showed indecent haste in proposing a claimant would lose all chance of appointment

Committee Changes

WASHINGTON, Dec 21 —Senator Plumb's death will give the Northwest another committee chairmanship for Senator Dolph of Oregon will go to the head of the committee on public lands. Just what changes will be brought about in the formation of committees by the death of Senator Plumb cannot easily at this time be foreshadowed. These will depend very largely upon the character of his successor If ex-Senator Ingalls should be appointed there would have to be very much of a readjustment for senatorial courtesy would insist on Mr Ingalls getting a place on as many as possible of his old committees.

The Graves Trial.

DENVER Dec 21 —The Graves poisoning case was resumed this morning Charles Lincoln, the evidence correspondent of the Boston Herald, was called to the stand. He had an interview with Dr Graves on the night the latter arrived from Denver, on April 27th last. The doctor soon after he met him—asked about the bogus telegram sent to the doctor's wife by Reporter Kirby He also asked about the other bogus message sent to his wife by the Providence reporters and then he told the witness he had been appointed to look after her property after being selected three times. He knew much about her, but for the sake of her daughters he had kept quiet, but he did not think he could remain quiet any longer It was all bosh that he had drawn up a will for her, but he admitted that he was beneficiary under her will An autopsy had been held on her body in Denver, and it had been shown that she died of poison Witness had a long interview with the doctor on the following morning. Mr. Tinkey of the Boston Globe was with him on this occasion. They entered the doctor's house at 7.25 a. m The doctor said that when he met Mrs. Barnaby she was not in a good physical condition. He gave her much attention, for which he received extra compensation. Mr. Tinkey and the witness asked the doctor questions. The letter continued that he and Mrs. Graves were guests of Mrs. Barnaby the previous summer at Blue Mountain lake at Mrs. Barnaby's expense

Mr. Lincoln continued his testimony of the interview which he had with Dr. Graves. Dr. Graves told Mr. Lincoln that he was in Newton, Mass, when he heard of Mrs. Barnaby's death and went to Denver to get some of the valuables and papers of Mrs. Barnaby. He at once started for Denver and had proceeded as far as Chicago when it occurred to him that he had an uncle in Sterling, Ills. and he determined to visit him After staying in Sterling a few days the doctor went to Cedar Rapids, Ia, and from there to Denver. In this interview Dr. Graves told Mr. Lincoln that Mrs. Barnaby had died from a shock, and that there was no doubt but that she had been murdered Dr. Graves knew that Mrs. Barnaby had made a will and that it was in his favor.

Mr. Lincoln was cross-examined, but his testimony was not altered

Martin C. Day, newspaper correspondent of Providence, was then called to the witness stand and corroborated Mr. Lincoln's testimony.

Mrs. J. H. Conrad, a daughter of Mrs Barnaby, next testified She told how she went Dr. Graves on the evening she left Denver for the east with her mother's remains. The doctor appeared very nervous and dazed when talking to her. She had received a letter [illegible] for the indignation of things he had said about Mrs. Barnaby in the interview with Correspondent Lincoln. Mrs. Conrad said she had never requested Dr. Graves to look after her mother's interests

Miss Maud Barnaby, the daughter of the dead woman next took the stand, but nothing new was developed.

Detective O. M. Hancomb of the Boston Pinkerton agency then testified. He swore that Dr. Graves admitted to him that he had sent Mrs. Barnaby a bottle of whisky When Graves told Hancomb, he (Graves) was under the impression that Hancomb was John H. Conrad's brother. Dr. Graves in the presence of Hancomb and John H. Conrad admitted sending the bottle of whisky, but not until both had given him their word of honor that they would not use what he told them as evidence against Graves in a court of justice. Hancomb and Conrad advised Graves to tell his family about sending the bottle. Graves said he told not do this because he had already told his wife that he had not sent the bottle.

John H. Conrad then took the stand. His testimony was a repetition of Mr. Hancomb's. The court then took a recess and will hold a session to-night.

Suffering for Gold

DENVER, Dec 21 —A special to the Times from Rico, Colo, says that yesterday Barney Mund and Billy Dunn, two miners, were being lowered in a bucket into the Silver Glance mine. When about 200 feet down it was discovered that the shaft had become filled with carbonic acid gas Dunn at once gave the signal to the engineer above to hoist them up. Before this could be done Mund had become suffocated and fell from the bucket to the bottom of the mine. Dunn succeeded in reaching the top in a half conscious condition As soon as the gas had been expelled from the mine, Mund was brought to the surface but he had been dead some time.

Created Butte Mine Resumes.

DENVER, Dec 21 —A special to The Republican from Crested Butte says that work in the Colorado Coal and Iron company's mine resumed to-day, about eighty men being at work, and that the first coal mined since the strike began, Nov. 30 last, was taken out. It is expected that there will be about 150 men at work in the mine to-morrow A meeting of the strikers was held to-day for the purpose of declaring the strike off, but for some reason this was not done

Incendiary Fire at Alamosa

DENVER, Dec. 21 —A special to The Republican from Alamosa Colo., says that a fire this morning in the business part of the town consumed eighteen buildings before the flames were extinguished All the houses were of frame. The loss is $75,000, with no insurance.

Walt Whitman Dying

PHILADELPHIA, Dec 22 2 15 a. m.—Walt Whitman is gradually sinking. "The chances are," said one of his physicians "against Mr. Whitman will die to-day. I cannot see how he will live another day."

PILGRIMS' DAY.

Banquet of the New England Society in Brooklyn

GROVER CLEVELAND'S ADDRESS

Pilgrims in New England and Pilgrims from New England—The Spirit of American Patriotism and Principles.

NEW YORK Dec 21 —The New England Society of Brooklyn gave its annual dinner at the assembly rooms in the Academy of Music in honor of the 271st anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims. The rooms were appropriately decorated for the occasion Governor Hill presided. The Hon Calvin E Pratt president of the society presided

At the conclusion of the dinner President Pratt read a brief address in which the following toasts The President of the United States and the memory of General Sherman were drunk in silence

Just at this moment a telegram from Cleveland entered the banquet room and was greeted with a storm of applause On being introduced Mr Cleveland spoke as follows

MR PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN—As this is the first time I have attended a dinner given by a New England society I beg to express the great satisfaction it affords to enter upon my first experience in the city of Brooklyn and among those whom I have always regarded as especially my friends

You will by no means to suppose that my failure heretofore to be present on occasions like this is accounted for by any doubt I have had as to my qualifications for admission From the time the first immigrant of my name landed in Massachusetts down to the day of my advent all the Clevelands from whom I claim descent were born in New England. The fact that I first saw the light in the state of New Jersey I have never regarded as working a forfeiture of any right I may have derived from my New England lineage, nor as making me an intruder or merely tolerated guest in an assemblage of this kind

No one will deny that the Pilgrims of New England were well worthy of all that is done or can be done to keep them in remembrance But we cannot recall their history and what they did and established and what they taught without also recalling that there have been Pilgrims from New England who, finding their way to every part of the land, have taken with them those habits, opinions, and sentiments which, having an early origin in American soil, should be best suited to American life everywhere, and should be the best guarantees in every station, of the preservation, in their integrity and purity, of American institutions.

We have heard much of abandoned lands in New England If farms have been abandoned there, we know that larger and more productive farms have been developed in new states by the Pilgrims from New England If the population of New England has suffered a drain, we shall find that the vigorous activity lost to her has built up new cities and towns on distant and unbroken soil and improved upon those new creations the thrifts and best features of American civilization.

While all will admit the debt our great country owes to New England influences, and while none of us should be unmindful of the benefits to be reasonably expected from the maintenance and spread of those influences, it is thought is suggested which has further relation to the mission and duty of the Pilgrims from New England and their descendants, wherever they may be scattered throughout the land If they are at all true to their teachings and their traditions they will naturally illustrate in a practical way the value of education and moral sentiment in the foundations of social life and the value of industry and economy in conditions of thrift and contentment. But these Pilgrims and their descendants and all those who, with sincere enthusiasm celebrate Forefathers' day, will fail in the discharge of their highest duty if, yielding to the temptation of any unAmerican tendency, they neglect to teach persistently that in the early days there was, and that there still ought to be, such a thing as true and distinctive Americanism, or if they neglect to give it just interpretation

This certainly does not mean that a spirit of narrowness or proscription should be encouraged, nor that there should be created or kept alive a fear concerning such additions to our population from other lands as promise assimilation with our conditions and cooperation in our aims and purposes. It does, however, mean the insistence that every transfer of allegiance from another government to our own, should signify the taking on at the same time of an acceptance and affirmative devotion to the spirit of American institutions. It means that with us, a love of our government for its own sake and for what it is, is an essential factor of citizenship, and that it is only made full and complete by the adoption of the ideas and habits of thought which underlie our plan of popular government. It means that one filled with love in our citizenship unworthily also regards it solely as vantage ground whence he may fill his purse and better his condition It means that our government is not suited to a selfish, sordid people, and that in their hands it is not safe

There is a time when there is pressing need for the earnest enforcement of these truths and occasions like this cannot be better improved than by leading us to such self examination and self-correction as shall fit us to illustrate and teach the lessons of true Americanism When we here recall the landing of the Pilgrims, let us remember that they not only sought "freedom to worship God," but they also sought to establish the freedom and liberty of manhood. When we dwell upon their stern and sturdy traits let us remember that these nurtured the spirit which achieved American independence, and that in such soil alone can its fruits ripen to bless our people When we contemplate how completely conscience guided their lives and conduct, let us resolve that conscience shall find a place in every phase of citizenship; and when we learn of their solicitude and care for their new-found home, let us acknowledge that unselfish love of country can alone show us the path of political duty.

With such preparation as this—leaving no place for the ignoble thought that our government can, without perversion, hold out unequal rewards and encourage selfish designs—we shall teach that this heritage of ours has been confided from generation to generation to the patriotic keeping and loving care of true Americanism, and that this alone can preserve it, to shelter a free and happy people protecting all defending all and blessing all

The other speakers were Gen Horace Porter, Hon Roswell G Horr and Rev Chas Hall.

Death of an Old Miner

CHICAGO Dec 21 John Davies, one of the best known mining experts in the west died at the Sherman house to-night of pneumonia He was the original owner of the Little Chief gold mine near Leadville, which he sold some years ago to a Chicago syndicate headed by John V. Farwell and W Darter, for half a million dollars. After Darter, for half a million dollars. After every member of the syndicate had made a handsome fortune out of the mine they sold it for $6,000,000. Davies was born in Wales about fifty five years ago, and in his younger days was an extensive traveler. He was one of the first men to go to Colorado and in prospecting in the interest of a Welsh friend of the deceased Old miners around Leadville and Denver are still talking about the big poker game in which Davies got up from the table $80,000 over and the next night he sat down and in only recovered his loss but won $20,000 additional Davies came to Chicago about six months ago and had been staying every since at the Sherman house He was with a money and Alderman Martin a fortunate rich miner has befriended him in many ways At the time of his death Davies owned an interest in mining properties in Lake of the Woods Canada and also in Lake county Colorado

Another Crank After Sage

NEW YORK Dec 21—Russell Sage whom the bomb thrower Norcross tried to do out of $1,000,000 has again been threatened in a similar way

Since Norcross tried to assassinate the veteran Mr Sage has received nearly 1000 letters from cranks in all parts of the United States and even from Europe Some were threatening and others English. The only thing Mr Sage did was to call Inspector Byrnes Inspector said he would begin at once to make a search If persuaded Mr Sage to show him some of the letters or copies of them and translations of the foreign ones With doing that Mr Sage rested contentedly

Saturday evening a few minutes after 8 o clock there was a ring at the door One of the servants went to the door Sage has on the steps a young woman asked Is this 699 Fifth avenue The servant replied that it was not Scarcely had the servant spoken when a man sprang at the door

I have come to kill Mr Sage he cried out

The servant was astounded then she exclaimed loudly Well you got right out of here

The man again said I have come to kill Mr Sage

Mrs Sage rushed down stairs as soon as she heard the man repeat the words I have come to kill Mr Sage She went straight to the intruder and asked him What is it you want"

The man answered with a color of astonish ment in his voice, Did you not get my letter?

What letter?

"Why, I wrote you a letter saying that I wanted $2,500 and that if I did not get it I would blow Mr Sage and his house up Now, I want the money Pay it at once If you don t pay it I will blow you up too

The man had scarcely said this when Mrs Sage made one quick dash at the head and caught at his throat, fastening her fingers into his neck held him for a moment in such a grip that his pale face became almost black Mrs Sage thrust the man out the doorway and with the final vigor of a weak woman nerved to desperation, thrust him down the steps. Then she stepped back quickly and slammed the door shut.

A minute later the bell rang again and Mrs. Sage, still courageous, opened the door. The caller was Dr. Munn, to whom Mrs Sage told the story Almost before she had finished she hurried down the front stoop and crossed the sidewalk to the coachman at Dr. Munn's carriage and beckoned him call a policeman A policeman came that evening and the house was closely watched.

Inspector Byrnes has been told of the threatening visit, and there is now a strong guard upon the premises.

New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Decided activity on the stock exchange this morning with principal dealings in Toledo, Ann Arbor and Northern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Lackawanna, St. Paul, Northern Pacific, Atchison, Burlington, Rock Island, Richmond and West Point, Erie and Kansas and Texas stocks. At the opening prices were firm and advanced fractionally, but values were slightly unsettled on realizing sales. Toward 11 o'clock the market hardened somewhat and there was a steady advance in most cases up to noon, when about the best figures were generally current. The special features of the morning dealing were among the usually inactive stocks. Prices at noon were generally ½ to 1½ per cent. higher than they closed Saturday night. Richmond and Terminal was bought by houses opposed to the present management St Paul was firm on reports that the directors would declare a dividend in January The reports were unusually disbelieved, however London brokers were moderate buyers of stocks, the heaviest purchasing being in St Paul

The market continued active during the last half of the day, but prices were unsettled and irregular. There was a break selling to realize at intervals under which Atchison, Lackawanna and Rock Island fell. The selling was due to the fact that two holidays occur during the week and speculators do not wish to carry too great a load of stocks. The closing prices were irregularly changed from those of Saturday, but for the most part the changes were only fractional. In some cases, however, there were radical changes. Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe closed 3¼ lower, Chicago and Alton 2 per cent. higher and Richmond and West Point preferred 5. The total sales to-day were 412,410.

Money easy, closing at 3 per cent. Bar silver 94¾.

A Thousand Christians Massacred

BRUSSELS, Dec. 21 A dispatch was received at the Catholic mission at Ghent today from Father Roelens the vicar apostolic of Mongolia, stating that Father Minn, a Chinese priest, and a thousand native Christians were massacred by the rebels during the recent troubles in northern China. This despatch stated, however, that all the Belgian missionaries in the disturbed district and all the Belgians connected with their work were safe and that assistance had arrived which would prevent further danger for the present at least

Powell Clayton's Opinion

ST LOUIS, Dec. 21 —A morning paper has the following Gov Powell Clayton of Arkansas is at the Lindell. The governor is a political friend of the newly appointed secretary of war "I do not, like a great many others, look upon Mr Elkins' appointment as an indication of Mr Blaine's withdrawal, and I do not believe Mr. Blaine will withdraw from the race" he said

TELEGRAPH BREVITIES

Geo. W Cover, the district manager for the Edison General Electric company at Denver, died Sunday night in Schenectady.

The United States supreme court adjourned for two weeks it being its duty to adjourn over the Christmas holidays.

OFFICIAL SECRETS.

Government Officers Refuse to Talk on Chilian Affairs

BLAINE IS KEPT BUSY

It is Rumored That he is Preparing a Special Message to Congress on the Chilian Affairs A Chance of War

WASHINGTON Dec 21 The general city of Washington was filled to-day with the Chilian rumors circulated in Congress with the opening of the Monday session. It was understood that a program was intended simply as a form for the purpose of adjourning for the Christmas recess, and yet there certainly was a feeling that Secretary Blaine both before and since his return to the city had given a good deal of his time to the consideration of the Chilian question.

It is known that Secretary Blaine both before and since his return to the city had spent a good deal of time in telegraphing to his representatives and receiving replies, and it was to receive replies for which he was engaged to see any one and it must therefore be assumed that he was too much engaged to see any one and it must therefore be assumed

SOMETHING MUST BE DONE

WASHINGTON Dec 21—The well all of the state and navy departments observed a great deal of activity to-day in regard to the Chilian affair It was learned however that no communications have been received from Chilian either department since Thursday last when the secretary of state received a long message from Minister Egan While no positive information can be obtained as to the exact character of this message it is known to have reference to the political refugees now under the protection of the American minister

It is thought no action will be taken by the government until it is officially advised of the result of the investigation by the Chilian authorities of the killing of the sailors of the Baltimore

The Chilian minister left Montreal on the 11th inst and will go to Valparaiso in a day or two.

DIPLOMATIC SECRECY

WASHINGTON, Dec 21 —Every available source of information in regard to Chilian affairs was tapped this morning with unsatisfactory results The situation is exasperating, and in the absence of official denial or confirmation of alarming reports, no definite statement as to the true condition of affairs can be made.

Acting secretary Wolcy said he knew nothing about the alleged cablegram stating that the American legation in Chili was menaced.

Assistant-secretary Wharton said the Chilian affairs were entirely in the hands of Secretary Blaine, and if he knew anything about it, which he would not diplomatically admit, he was not at liberty to say so.

Private secretary Halford did not believe the situation was critical, but had not heard the president express himself on the subject, and was quite certain the president would say nothing about it even if there was any truth in the report, which he was not willing to admit

Mr Blaine could not be seen

Speaker Crisp at Work.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 —Speaker Crisp came up to the capitol to-day to attend the funeral ceremonies over the body of the late Senator Plumb. It was against the advice of his physicians, who urged him to stay indoors. The speaker's health is not improving, but he continues diligently at work on the committee. He is suffering from a heavy cold in the chest, aggravated by the fatigue of his canvass and work on the committee of the house.

A COMMITTEE SCHEME

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 —It is related tonight that Speaker Crisp has completed his makeup of the committee on elections, and that its membership, increased under the recent change of rules to fifteen, will be as follows O'Ferrell of Virginia, chairman Moore of Texas, Jason Brown of Indiana Cobb of Alabama, Lockwood of New York, Johnston of South Carolina Gillespie of Pennsylvania Bilbo of Kentucky Crowther of Georgia, Democrats, Haugen of Wisconsin, Johnson of Indiana, Reyburn of Pennsylvania, Taylor of Tennessee, Caldwell of Ohio and Clark of Wyoming, Republicans nine to six.

The other two leading committees, Ways and Means and Appropriations, though complete as to their leading members on both sides, are liable to be changed in minor details.

A Big Mining Deal.

HELENA, MONT., Dec. 21 —[illegible] of negotiations which extended nearly three years the property known as Spratt-Sapphire ground on the Missouri river, twelve miles from Helena has changed ownership. It now belongs to the Sapphire and Ruby company of Montana a corporation which has among its directors and shareholders some of the most prominent men of England. About three weeks ago Edwin W. Streeter and H Mallaby Deebey, directors of the company, accompanied by others interested, arrived in Helena Every day for nearly two weeks they were on the land inspecting and in other ways sifting the claims of the owners to the test As a result of all this a cablegram to London announced that the claims of the owners had been more than justified and a portion of the purchase money had been paid. The price agreed upon is £400,000 or $2,000,000, one-half of which is to be in cash and the balance in fully paid up shares. Streeter and Deebey left for London to-day

The property comprises about 8,000,000 acres on both sides of the Missouri river and extending a distance of twelve or fifteen miles. The plans of the company are greatly well matured and active operations will commence within thirty days. A. B. Wood of Detroit, an eminent engineer, will be the general manager and have charge of the work Both gold and gems will be mined

Canadian Politics

QUEBEC, Dec. 21.—The action of Lieutenant-Governor Angers in dismissing the Mercier government promises now to wreck the federal government at Ottawa also. It has opened the mouth of Mr Larte, now Mercier's ally, who created a tremendous sensation last night, at a mass meeting called in Mercier's interest, by disclosing that in making his famous charges at Ottawa relative to the harbor works boodle, which drove Sir Hector Langevin and Hon. Thomas McGreevy out of public life he was aided and abetted by Sir Hector's colleague and apparent friend, but real rival in the cabinet, Sir A. P. Caron minister of militia, and claims to be able to prove that the federal government has received $100,000 to run their election.

An Engine Wrecked

STATESTON, Penn Dec 21 —The north bound Lehigh Valley Buffalo express struck a rock that had rolled from the mountain side at Rockport near here this morning and the engine was demolished Michael Labelle, who was killed on the engine was killed to death The fireman was badly hurt and the passengers were shaken up, though none were injured While the south bound Buffalo express was running around the wreck the train was derailed but no one was hurt.

CITY COUNCIL

They Discuss a Number of Petty Matters

It really fathers are reluctant to pass any matter through until review and consider little matters get a thorough [illegible] All were present last evening except Aldermen Roby and Hosick

Alderman Davis of the finance committee moved that the sum of $[illegible] be loaned from the viaduct fund to the fund for completing the Rustic cottage in Park If money raised by bond for the purpose had been used the work would be necessary to get some money to do the work After a long discussion it was decided that this money should be raised by a bond in no event should Mr Davis motion be carried unanimously

All round Rose reported for the sprinkling committee that the present of the sprinkler had been laid off until spring

Judge Harris then arose and asked permission to address the council It was granted and he made a fervent appeal for the Chinese laundrymen of the city Though there were small enterprises employing only one or two men they had to pay the same water rates as did the big steam laundries They wanted a reduction and he thought that a modification of the rule would be a good thing for some small laundries not Chinese On motion Judge Harris and his clients were invited to explain with the water committee Two Celestials who had been taking in the proceedings with wide open eyes and broad smiles then arose an hurried out to tell their friends how their scheme progressed for getting a little after sance dlunggist"

A bill of Mr C I Tutt for rental for the land on which the pumping machinery for raising the Monument underflow is located in Roswell to the amount of $24 was brought up and every councilman present expressed an opinion on it Mr Rouse said that Mr Tutt only presented this bill as a sort of offset against his real estate license and now that the license had been abolished he did not think the bill should be pushed He thought that the machinery was doing no good up there and that the boiler might be used for heating the new city jail when it is built It was finally referred to the finance committee

The bill of Dr Hadfield for $24, was presented for attending one M H Green, a young man not a member of the fire department, who was in an express wagon on the way to a fire holding the rope of a cart, and who was dragged out and had his jaw broken. Alderman Bartlett of the fire committee, wanted it referred to the police committee, as the fire committee was not agreed upon it It appeared that only two members of the fire committee had discussed it, hence the deadlock It was referred back to the full fire committee

On motion of Alderman Rouse, the sum of $21.33, which had been erroneously paid for bridge and viaduct purposes from the street and ditch fund, was retransferred from the viaduct fund

The matter of the compensation for hauling carts to fires was brought up by a bill from Wooley & Van Vechten for hauling a cart and fourteen firemen to the Polsch fire. The chief of the department and the foreman of the Hook and Ladder company spoke of the largely increased size of the tools and the great weight of the apparatus and asked that the compensation be increased The whole matter was referred to the fire department committee to make a recommendation at the next meeting.

A small list of small accounts was read and allowed.

Alderman Finnegan stated that City engineer Kinsley had decided that an unnecessary amount of hydrant hose had been laid to pull for He did not think this decision was right and he wanted them all to pay. The matter was referred to the city attorney.

Alderman Davis read a letter from Thos. Fitzgerald, the watchman at the Huerfano street crossing of the Denver and Rio Grande, stating that the railroad company had formerly paid him living wages for keeping that crossing when the city council ordered the company to put two men there they did so, but paid the two men the same wages that Fitzgerald had been receiving if the council would reconsider their action he would stay at his post from 7 in the morning until 11 at night and would get living wages again On vote the communication tied and the mayor voted no

Some discussion arose about a cemetery lot which Alderman Dunbar said Mr H. C. Clay had bought "but never occupied" As Mr. Clay had not paid for it, the money was taken from the last salary he received from the city for superintending the dump After an extensive review of the situation the [illegible] was refunded and the lot returned to the city.

The council then adjourned.

Professor Hall's Opinion.

The New York Tax Reform Association has sent out inquiries to leading instructors in the colleges of the country for opinions upon its platform. THE GAZETTE has received a letter from the secretary of the association, and including a letter from Prof. W. M Hall of Colorado college, which is printed below. The platform of the association is as follows

1. The most direct taxation is the best, because it [illegible] a conscious and direct pecuniary interest in honest and economical government.

2. Mortgages and capital engaged in production or trade should be exempt from taxation, because taxes on such capital tend to drive it away, to put a premium on dishonesty and to discourage industry.

3. Real estate should bear the main burden of taxation, because such taxes can be most easily, cheaply and certainly collected, because they bear least heavily on the farmer and the worker

4. Our present system of levying and collecting state and municipal taxes is extremely bad, and absolutely and uncollecting tinkering with it is unlikely to result in substantial improvement.

5. No legislature will venture to enact a good system of local taxation until the people, especially the farmers, perceive the correct principles of taxation and see the folly of taxing personal property.

Wherefore We desire to unite our efforts in such ways as may seem advisable to keep up intelligent discussion and agitation of the subject of taxation, with a view to improvement in methods and enlightenment as to the correct principles.

The letters of the secretary and Professor Hall are as follows

DEAR SIR—In your circular for an association from Colorado college upon the platform of the New York Tax Reform Association, I may say that we cordially sympathize in the condemnation of the existing system of state and local taxation as a whole, and particularly of the "personal property" tax; that we [illegible] prefer the income tax to the real [illegible] to tax for state revenue; and that we concur with you in believing that [illegible] should bear the main burden of taxation" for county and municipal purposes. Not all the criticism of the railroads for their indifference to the lives of their employes is deserved. To save the life of an injured brakeman the Union Pacific recently ran a special from Greeley to Denver, fifty two miles in fifty five minutes.

The tenth annual meeting of the American Forestry association is called to meet in Washington on Dec 29 and 30. An interesting programme has been prepared and a large attendance is expected. Among the subjects discussed will be that of the proposed forest reservations in the west.

The absence of positive denial from the officials of the government at Washington that war is impending lends additional gravity to the Chilian situation. There is a general disposition to feel that the patience of the country is about exhausted, and that any repetition of the attack on the Baltimore's sailors or any violation of the American legation in Santiago can only be construed as an act of open war. The United States is anxious for peace but will fight to get it if necessary.

THE GAZETTE is in receipt of an unsigned communication in answer to an editorial in The Republic and Telegraph. Among other things that our correspondent wishes are a reduction of the price of real estate, so that intending purchasers may not think prices too high, a reduction in rents to prevent "hundreds of cottages standing vacant" (by the way, there are quite a number of people who would like to know where these cottages are), the establishment of a paid fire department with steam engines, the abolition of the "clause in the city's charter which prevents the establishment of manufactories," and that this nation should cease to play second fiddle to Europe on the coinage question. If these things are done our correspondent thinks it would result in the greatest prosperity and the government would survive even if a million of silver bullion were mined every year at Cripple Creek, and coined into dollars.

The chief interest which Americans feel in the recent disgraceful disclosures in Canadian politics, is on account of the amusing assumption of superior virtue which has been characteristic of English and Canadian criticism of the United States. There is no one in this country who is glad that these things have happened, but since the scandals of Canadian politics have equaled the worst of the American record, we are quite willing to see in it a proof that there is nothing in republicanism which conduces to official corruption and nothing in the monarchic system which insures freedom from it. The disgraceful condition of Canadian politics is only temporary, as anyone who is familiar with the English race at home and abroad must admit, and indeed the disclosure is a healthy sign, the first necessary step towards reform. But for the present it would be well for Canadian magazines and English reviews to cease commenting about the unparallelled corruption of American politics.

Politicians are already discussing the question of a successor to Mr. Plumb. The appointment will be made by Governor Humphrey, who is a Republican. If a special session of the legislature were called for an election this year it would be the same body which elected Senator Peffer, and it would probably choose an Alliance man. It may therefore be taken for granted that a Republican will be appointed by the governor, and that he will hold office until a new election can be held and a new legislature be assembled to choose a senator in the winter of 1893. There is so far quite a difference of opinion as to the party the appointee of the governor, some men being quite sure that it can be no other than ex-Senator Ingalls, while others are equally sure that he would be the last man to receive the appointment. It is true that Senator Ingalls made mistakes and made them in a way to alienate friends and embitter enemies, but there was never a man who was more creditable to Kansas than he and his services to the state and to the nation might well induce the governor to overlook his truckling to the Alliance movement. The Republican party needs all its first-class men in Washington this winter and in point of ability the Kansas ex-senator has strong claims to consideration.

SENATOR PLUMB.

The death of Senator Plumb on Sunday removed from the national legislative halls one of the leaders of the Republican party and especially of the western part of it. He was active in all the matters such as irrigation, coinage and the disposal of the public lands, which particularly concerned this section of the country, and had had a distinct influence in shaping the national legislation upon those important subjects. The account of his life prepared for the recent number of the congressional directory is as follows:

"Preston B. Plumb, of Emporia, was born in Delaware county, Ohio, October 12, 1837; received a common school education; learned the art of printing; removed to Kansas in 1856; was a member of the Leavenworth constitutional convention in 1859; was admitted to the bar in 1861; served in the lower house of the legislature in 1862, and was chairman of the judiciary committee, and subsequently reporter of the supreme court. In August of the same year entered the [illegible] Kansas at the Eleventh Kansas infantry, and served successfully as captain, major and lieutenant of that regiment; was commissioned colonel of the same regiment in August, 1862, but not mustered for the reason that a mustering officer was not within reach until after a part of the regiment had been mustered out; was a member and speaker of the Kansas house of representatives in 1867, and also a member in the following year, was elected to the United States senate to succeed James H Harvey Republican took his seat March 4, 1877, and was re-elected in 1883 and 1888. His term of service will expire March 3, 1895.

The Opportunity for Republicans.

New York Daily Tribune.

There are two kinds of Democrats at Washington each contending for the mastery of a faction of the party. There is nothing left to look for in the interests of the nation except the problems in congress, and there [illegible] constitutes their rank and position [illegible]

One faction of Democrats angrily declares that the election of Mr. Mills as a free trader, pointing to the nomination of Mr Cleveland as a free trader, would have in store for the Democratic party death and burial. The other faction declares that the defeat of Mr. Mills, inasmuch as he represents the only cause which has drawn to the party a great array of votes and has won its successes, means defeat and destruction. The supporters of these factions are doubtless as sincere as they are passionate. Meanwhile, the one thing altogether plain is that they are thinking of party politics, and not of the public welfare. They are fighting about the distribution of offices during the next presidential term, and evidently care infinitely more about that than about the prosperity of the country. To them the cry of free silver on the one hand, or free trade on the other, is nothing except a tool with which to unlock the treasury, a weapon with which to beat down political opponents, in other words, a device by which to get the offices for themselves.

But somebody ought to be thinking about the good of the people of the United States. During the coming session, it is already obvious, all sorts of questions concerning the tariff, the currency, the industries, the prosperity and the honor of the people of the United States are going to be passed upon by the majorities in the house of representatives with strict and sole regard to the possible partisan advantage expected from action or inaction. Neither one faction nor the other will in fact care a thousandth part as much about the result of measures to the people and the prosperity of this country as it cares about the political effect of those measures respecting the nomination for the presidency, the election of a president and the subsequent distribution of offices and contracts. But who is to look after the interests of the people of the United States? When each question comes up in its turn, and wrangling Democratic factions are talking and voting with an eye single to the spoils, who is to set forth the effects of this measure as to the public prosperity, as to the industries which afford a sustenance for millions of American citizens, as to the honor and power of this republic among the nations of the earth?

This is obviously the work which the Republicans in congress have set for them. They owe to the Democratic party an enormous debt of gratitude for giving to them a task so congenial and so worthy. Happily, it will not be in any degree necessary for them to dispute among themselves, with reference to the advancement of this or that faction, for differences among Republican expanding a choice of men do not prevent hearty agreement regarding the principles upon which the welfare of the country is believed to depend. No white Democrat are talking and voting partisan politics, and cheap factional politics at that, it is the privilege and honor of Republican senators and representatives to discuss and to act for the well being of the United States. If our Democratic friends imagine that the contrast will not presently strike the intelligent people of this country, and influence their votes, there is a prospect that they may find themselves much mistaken before the session ends.

LITERARY NOTES.

The Overland Monthly announces for its opening issue of the New Year, which will also be a Christmas number, a profusion of illustrated articles. The leader will be called Mission Bells, and will be a sketch by C. H. Shinn on the legends, history, and other lore of the famous old bells and bell towers of the California missions. It will be illustrated with photogravures, and with sketches, drawings, and decorative initials, by Elizabeth Curtis.

MEN WILL FIGHT.

Admiral S. S. Luce Says the End of War Will Never Come.

It is the popular and very proper thing to say that the progressive spirit of the age is leaving the barbarism of war behind, and that as civilization advances it will learn less of war. Arbitration is now the sovereign panacea for that national ill. But, as a matter of fact, war has never been so carefully and so systematically studied as at the present time. The genius of invention has never been so prolific as now in devising and improving implements of war. That man is honored and enriched who contrives means of destroying the greatest number of human beings in the shortest space of time. As the conduct of war becomes more scientific and the art becomes refined and the implements more destructive, the recurrence of war is lessened, the duration shortened and the loss of human life diminished. This is the direction the spirit of the age is taking a direction in the interests of humanity. These humane conditions, however, involve an advanced stage of preparation. As a science war should be sedulously cultivated by the few qualified to undertake it; as an art it should be constantly practiced by the entire body set apart for that purpose and with the implements actually to be used in war. It is to this state of preparation that we owe the peace of Europe to-day. The mere presence of the American army on our southern frontier in 1860 was sufficient to cause the collapse of Louis Napoleon's scheme for a Mexican empire. By a perfect state of preparation a collision of arms was avoided and the shedding of blood spared. To be unprepared is wicked. It invites aggression and a useless effusion of blood. The question of an empire in Mexico supported by French bayonets was not one for arbitration. We simply would not have it. There is a certain class of international questions for which arbitration is admirably suited, there is another class for which it is not suited at all—for which it is totally inadmissible. It is the lamb that advocates arbitration, even though the life and honor of the fold be involved, while the wolf maintains a lofty indifference to all such methods of proceeding. Venezuela has been for years past supplicating for arbitration on the question of boundary between her own territory and that claimed by England, but it is only within the last few months that the latter power has, according to report, formally declined the good offices of the United States in that controversy. Arbitration was inadmissible in 1860-61 when so sorely needed. War, which had been in the course of preparation for thirty years preceding its outbreak, was the only solution of the great problem. It had to be. Arbitration fails most miserably when most needed, and what wonder? The high contracting parties and their empires are all men of like passions, having no court of last resort but the battlefield. — North American Review.

PLANS FOR CHRISTMAS.

THOSE MADE AT THE WHITE HOUSE AND BY THE CABINET LADIES.

Baby McKee Is to Have a Fine Tree and There Will Be a Display at Vice President Morton's Residence—One Sorrowful Household.

THE president's wife puts quite as much time into the making of her gifts as any woman in the land. She takes a genuine pleasure in giving presents that show the receivers that the donor has not only had a thought for them, but has used her time and taste also. Every morning except Sundays up to Christmas she can be found painting either in her own room or at the studio class.

At the studio she is decorating a number of panels. The designs are copied from models of rare California flowers given her while on a western tour last spring. Being pressed they retained their color when Washington was reached, and, aided by Mrs Harrison's descriptions Putzka, her instructor, was able to make many models which she is now using. She has a large family connection and of course a wide circle of friends, hence Christmas means no light amount of work for her. She paints swiftly and utilizes every moment of freedom. Even after that a lot of presents must be bought. No attempt is made at the White House to do fancy work. Mrs. McKee, who used to think she was an adept, says she and a needle are such strangers that she has almost forgotten the art of sewing.

Mrs Harrison is a firm advocate of Christmas. She always stood by Santa Claus and brought up her family in the same way. Both mother and grandmother intend that Master McKee and Mary Lodge McKee shall cherish a belief in St. Nicholas as long as they enjoy it. Indeed, although every attache and servant in the house will receive some token from the head of the nation and his wife, it is in making ready for the children's Christmas that Mrs. Harrison finds the most comfort. No matter in what spirit their elders receive a gift, children are genuine. The day before Christmas the prettiest pine or hemlock tree the gardener can find will be brought in, and until 11 o'clock next morning the family library will hold a delightful mystery for the little ones. They think Santa Claus will visit the room, and when the tree full of presents is disclosed they will be firmer in the faith than ever. Master McKee will get unlimited quantities of books and tools. The tree will remain in the library for several days and afford the children fun in addition to that connected with the Christmastide.

WAITING FOR THE DOORS TO OPEN.

At the vice president's Mrs. Morton is also preparing for a Christmas tree. There are five daughters in the family, and although once the tree was set up wherever the Mortons lived it has been omitted for several years. Now the youngest insists on her rights, and the tree will be displayed. There will be no Santa Claus. Former Mr. Morton impersonated him for the children, but now he clings to his dignity as decline to appear in fur coat and whiskers.

Not a Christmas tree is there to be in the cabinet familial.

The postmaster general's household leaves Washington for Jenkinstown a week before the festival, and Mrs. Wanamaker completes her preparations there. The number of Mrs. Wanamaker's gifts is enormous. A feature of the Wanamakers' Christmas is the distribution of gifts to all the people in their employ at Jenkinstown. Besides the home estate there is an immense farm, and each man, woman or child on both is remembered.

All the cabinet ladies but Mrs. Noble held the patron saint of Christmas in high esteem when young, and many of their children the same belief. Mrs. Noble, wife of the secretary of the interior, is the daughter of Quaker parents. There was no quibbling with them. At Christmas the stockings were stuffed with presents, but the children knew who filled them, and there was no breathless watching for the patter of reindeer feet and the descent of Santa by the chimney highway. Mrs. Noble has a deepseated aversion to gifts of handiwork and never touches a needle. Every present is purchased, and each person remembered by her gets an article intended for personal use.

To the family of the secretary of the navy Christmas is full of sorrowful memories, but in spite of them Mrs. Wilmerding is planning to gratify many friends, and her gifts are purchases fresh from the counters. Mrs. Rusk is about the only one who uses her needle, and she will send out among other things a number of specimens of fine needlework and beautiful hemstitching, in which she is an adept. The Fosters have always found Christmas one of the jollest days of the year. All the old time traditions have been preserved by Mrs. Foster, but this year, on account of the secretary's illness, the family are not settled in their plans. Mrs Foster, however, is making some pieces of rich embroidery for particular friends. The attorney general's family anticipate a very quiet Christmas. There is only one daughter, Miss Florence, and she is beyond Christmas trees. Mrs Miller makes but few gifts outside her immediate circle, and the presents to her family appear at the breakfast table.

These are some of the happy Christmases of the cabinet, but there is one house where there will be no rejoicing. There the day is the most sorrowful of the year.

MRS. MCGUIRE.

ENGLAND'S FUTURE QUEEN

The Fiancee of Wales' Eldest Son Was Once Jilted by the Son of a Peer.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Dec 17. Princess Mary of Teck, whose engagement to the eldest son of the Prince of Wales has just been officially announced, and who is destined at some future period, that cannot possibly be far distant, to become queen of Great Britain and empress of India is a young damsel fair of feature and amiable of character whose existence until now has not been altogether of roses. For she has been subjected to the slight ill being gleefully jilted, not by a prince of the blood, but by a young man who, although he bears the courtesy title of Viscount Weymouth, is nothing but a mere commoner in the eyes of the law. He is the eldest son and heir of the Marquis of Bath, and it was in deference to the latter's wishes and even commands, that he deliberately broke off his engagement to be married to Princess Mary of Teck.

The objection raised by the marquis to the match were of peculiar character and likely to rankle for many a year in the hearts of the royal family of Great Britain in general, and in that of the Duchess elect of Clarence in particular. Nor is it probable that when the latter ascends the throne of England as Queen Mary, that the ancient family whose chief Lord Bath is will be very cordially welcomed at court. It appears that the marquis, who is famed throughout the kingdom not only for his wealth but also for his intense pride and arrogance, regarded Princess Mary's birth as not sufficiently good to admit of her becoming the mistress of Longleat. For although her mother, the Duchess of Teck, a sister of the Duke of Cambridge, is of English blood royal, yet her father, the Duke of Teck, is, like Prince Henry of Battenberg, merely the issue of a morganatic or left hand marriage between a Wurtemberg princeling and an Austrian countess.

The slight to Princess Mary was rendered all the more flagrant by her faithless lover's marriage a year later to Violet Mordaunt, the girl whose inopportune birth in 1869 led to the great Mordaunt divorce case in 1870, a divorce case which the Prince of Wales, together with his friends, Sir Frederick Johnstone and Lord Cole, were cited by the plaintiff, Sir Charles Mordaunt, as co-respondents. What the inducements may have been by which the marquis was led to force his consent to the match I am unable to say, but they must have been of an extraordinary nature.

While the family of Princess Mary is liked in England, it cannot be said that it enjoys any particular respect or esteem on the part of either the classes or the masses. The brothers of the future queen have already acquired an unenviable reputation both in the regiments to which they belong and in society generally for their stupidity and for their extravagance. Indeed, both of the elder boys have already got into the hands of the money lenders, and quite a number of "chits" bearing their princely signatures are flying about London. This is all the more detestable in view of the exceedingly straitened circumstances of their parents, who on one memorable occasion were reduced to such a predicament as to render it necessary that a public sale of their effects, including many heirlooms, should be held.

Moreover, Princess Mary's father, the Duke of Teck, has been the hero of quite a number of escapades which have given great offense to the royal family, and especially to Queen Victoria. No less than twice has his brother-in-law, the Duke of Cambridge, been obliged to follow him to the Continent, to which he had eloped with either the one or the other of his daughter's governesses, and the old Duke of Cambridge has often been heard to remark in times now happily gone by that the work of "keeping Brother-in-law Frank straight" was almost as difficult as that entailed by his duties as commander in chief of the British army.

Moreover, the Duke of Teck has, perhaps in consequence of the studied hauteur and even insolence of the British aristocracy toward him, been in the habit of seeking his associates among those hangers on of society who are looked upon askance and with undisguised contempt by those within the sacred circle, and I myself have been the witness of the grossest rudeness toward the father of the future queen of England on the part of an English peer and his friends. It was on the occasion of the wedding of the peer's daughter and the duke, who was acquainted with both the bride and the latter's parents, called at the house for the purpose of offering his good wishes and congratulations in person.

On the groom of the chambers announcing his name, the peer ordered aloud the servant to inform the duke that neither himself nor his wife, nor yet the young bride, were "at home." These directions, given amid a hum of approbation on the part of the guests, were received with an ill concealed titter by his servants down stairs, and it was with a face betraying signs of humiliation that the duke re-entered his carriage.

Moreover, when he volunteered his services at the time of the Anglo-Egyptian war in 1882, instead of being intrusted with an active and responsible command such as his war record as a brilliant Austrian cavalry officer should have entitled him to obtain, he was merely placed in charge of the postal service of the expeditionary force, an appointment which under the circumstances could not be regarded as anything else than a deliberate insult. The duke, however, bore this slight as he has done many others, patiently and with a certain amount of dignity, and performed his uncongenial duties well.

It is a long line, however, that has no turning, and his time of tribulation may be [illegible] the same persons who were so very ready to slight that rank outside of the royal family, the foreign and morganatic born Duke of Teck, will be among the very first to pay court and homage to the father of the future queen of England.

PRAISE FROM KATE FIELD.

What the Brilliant Woman Has to Say of Colorado Springs.

Kate Field, the popular lecturer and writer, devotes the first page of her paper, "Kate Field's Washington," in a late number, to Colorado Springs. Her article, which is headed "Health and Art in Colorado Springs," is as follows:

It is some years since the luminous intelligence of "H. H." made known to the world the beauty and beauty of Colorado Springs, a beauty which has attracted so many sound minds in unsound bodies that what began as a pleasant village is rapidly developing into a town as unique in the culture of its inhabitants as its scenery and climate.

No one who has seen Colorado Springs for the first time realizes the wonderful progress it has made within the last four years. Villa after villa appears where in 1887 there lay the virgin mesa. For miles Cascade avenue is lined with the homes of wise men and women of the east who find here the health they lost at sea level. It is difficult to pity them in their exile where nature smiles the whole year around and bids them keep her company in saddle and on foot, while Pike's Peak towers above its fellows of the Rockies adding the element of grandeur to the charm of canon and of plain. When from a delightful and well-stored library the eye looks out upon a splendid chain of mountains, with their ever-varying effects of cloud and shadow, I wonder whether these exiles have not the best of it after all. There is the leisure to study nature, to read books, to watch the panorama of the world's history, to think over social problems and, perhaps, to solve them. Though I passed but a day in Colorado Springs on my last visit, I received more valuable suggestions there than in all the rest of my western trip. They came from a New Yorker whose health had broken down in pursuing a fortune and who now, living by the grace of Colorado's sun, devotes his great energies to developing his adopted city. When men needed by the world are saved out of the current by physical reasons and flock to a sanitarium like Colorado Springs it is self-evident that they will make an atmosphere of thought impossible to find in towns dedicated to commerce. "Once an a," have a mission fraught with benefit to their community.

How many know that Colorado Springs is a coeducational college which is doing admirable service? Already citizens give seriously to what is likely to occupy a peculiar position among educational institutions. No one denies that our universities are excellent in uniformity—Harvard, Yale, and Cornell, and Ann Arbor are fond to disagree with many. To student and teacher, then, who break down in the east, Colorado Springs offers a sanitarium for body and brain. Does not the idea of such an institution of learning appeal to common sense, and is it strange that President Potter of Yale should think favorably of it?

Not only are rich exiles of Colorado Springs considering a college, but they meditate the founding of a ranch sanitarium for the benefit of the poor who have money enough to get to Colorado but are stranded in purse and nail. I believe it is contemplated to buy a ranch of three hundred acres, put up cheap detached houses, and charge the occupants about fifteen dollars a month for all the necessaries of life. This small sum can easily be worked out by ordinary invalids. As the Riviera lungs are comfortable but they don't get well," said a five-years' resident of Colorado Springs. "I have been there and know. Here the climate is not only soothing but curative, and I can now in months in the east with impunity. Such a ranch sanitarium as we talk about will do great good."

Not only is Colorado Springs a health resort, but it bids fair to become a Western art center. The same men and women who build artistic houses furnish them with rare books and works of art. Mr. J. J. Hagerman's residence is filled with admirable paintings and engravings. Mr. Louis R. Ehrich, another exile, already begins to talk of an art museum which I have no doubt will materialize within the next five years. An art colony is sure to follow. At the request of Mr. Ehrich I told the Unity club the story of our struggle for free art, and without a dissenting voice the following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That it is the sense of the meeting that a tax on the admission of art is a disgrace to the American nation.

Resolved, That we urge upon our senators and congressional representatives to give all possible aid and influence to the abolition of duty on art.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished our congressional representatives.

Clergymen, lawyers, merchants, bankers, all of one accord, and again I wondered why I should find that wild and woolly westerner of whom the Fifty-first congress stood in such fear as to shackle art after first tasting freedom. Read what sort of opinion I met under the shadow of Pike's Peak:

"Although I am a protectionist—I hope in an enlightened way—I am thoroughly opposed to any duty on art. That is only worthy of the Middle Ages. I hope your efforts will succeed. I send you my check for $10 to aid you. Yours most truly,

J. J. HAGERMAN.

Taking the Tailors.

As stated before in these columns the businessmen tailors of the country are doing of a home for indigent members of their calling, the Printers' home. The committee on constitution has suggested that a vote of the general membership be taken asking the number of members who will pledge themselves to pay the sum of one dollar per annum toward a fund for establishing such a home, and if the returns justify the executive board to establish a fund for the purpose. If the scheme goes through, and it is quite probable it will, Colorado Springs should take active steps to secure the building. The following letter to the tailors has been printed in The Tailor, published in New York, and is sound advice:

Foremost among the beneficial features of international labor organizations stands the idea of a Home for Union Printers. Colorado on the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains, the structure, site and surroundings attract and commend the institution. Situated on the outskirts of the pretty little city of Colorado Springs, on a commanding eminence, the building may be seen for miles in every direction. Within sight of the famed Garden of the Gods, of the magical springs of Manitou, the attractive properties are unequalled, while the grandeur of the Rocky mountain range crushes an ever-changing panorama upon the thousands who here annually seek relief from pulmonary and bronchial affections. The pure air of this elevated region, the bright sunshine and clear skies of Colorado invigorate and cheer, restoring the invalid to health and strength.

The Printers' Home is a pioneer institution, established and maintained for the benefit of unfortunate and afflicted members of the craft. Through the generosity of Messrs. Wilkins and Drexel of Philadelphia, who presented the International Union with the building, and the liberality of Messrs. McKeever and Martin, who donated a valuable tract of eighty acres as a site upon which to erect a Home, the typos were enabled to secure a palace which had long been a fond dream to the older members of the craft. For two years past, the monthly payment of a monthly assessment of 75 per capita has furnished a fund for the completion and furnishing of the Home, together with its maintenance.

The Home was started at an expense of about $40,000, while the grounds have increased in value in three years from $2,000 to $40,000. It is conducted under the management of a board of trustees, who are incorporated under the laws of Colorado. Successors to retiring members of the board are elected annually at the meetings of the International Union.

Colorado Springs has many sanitariums, public and private, all of which are either endowed or assisted by wealthy and generous citizens of that place. A mecca for the consumptive and debilitated, there appears to be no tax or restriction on either earth or water, air or sunshine, the noble-hearted of the community vying with each other in donating building sites, furnishing chambers and medical experts for the hospitals and homes, which are being located beneath the sunset shadows of Pike's Peak.

With the rapid advancement of systematic organization, other institutes of like nature will be founded for the care of the worn-out and weary, whose open portals will gladden alike the heavy-laden and the prosperous of the craftsmen interested. "Go thou and do likewise."

J. D. VARONAS.

Square Mr. Collbran.

Under the above heading the Denver Times last Saturday evening printed the following very complimentary notice regarding General manager Collbran of the Midland, that will be pleasant reading to that gentleman's friends:

Since the consolidation of the orders of railway conductors and the elimination of the "strike" clause, trainmen on local divisions are in perfect condition for federation when differences arise in any of the orders, and in one or two instances a combination has been formed.

Not long ago the Rio Grande took off a brakeman from the passenger trains in the division west of Salida and substituted a colored porter, as is done on the first division. The train crews federated and sent an objection to the superintendent, and the colored porters were withdrawn.

Another instance occurred recently on the Colorado Midland. A "spotter" sent in a report, after checking up one or two conductors, and the latter were requested to resign in consequence. The conductors declared to their colleagues that they were innocent. The trainmen federated and requested Mr. Collbran that the conductors be given an opportunity to prove their innocence. They stated to the general manager that if the conductors were found guilty that they ought to be discharged, but that they thought the "cons" should have a show. Mr. Collbran agreed to the proposition and fixed a day on which the "spotter" was to put in an appearance with his evidence. The "spotter" never appeared and the conductors were reinstated. This act of Mr. Collbran's has endeared him very much to the train crews on the Midland and the boys think he is the squarest man in the business. They say that if a man robs the company they want to have him punished, but as it is impossible for a "spotter" to sit in the rear end of a train and correctly check a conductor, it is no more than fair that he should have a hearing.

It was reported a few days ago that the train men on the first division of the Rio Grande had federated to combine against the reduction of wages expected to follow the reorganization of the official department. A conductor, though, denies that a federation has been formed.

There Was No Mystery.

The remains of Solly Bufford, the young colored man who died suddenly at Cripple Creek, were brought to the city Sunday evening and taken to Hallett & Baker's undertaking rooms. There had been some talk of poison, over-dose of morphine, etc., and County-coroner Marlow deemed an autopsy necessary. At 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon Dr. Strickler and Coroner Marlow performed the autopsy. There was not the slightest external appearance of poison or violent death. Coroner Marlow says the post-mortem showed that death had resulted from pneumonia, as the lungs were badly congested and there was a blood clot in the heart.

The remains will be forwarded to Marshfield, Mo., for interment.

Mr. Sayford's Sermons.

On Sunday evening the First Presbyterian church was filled to overflowing with such an audience as never before was gathered in any church in this city. Mr. Sayford preached to men only, and all the seats were filled with men, the aisles being crowded and many turned away who could not find entrance. Mr. Sayford's discourse was on the temptations to which men as men were most exposed. It was marked by great fairness and by exceeding vigor, and produced a deep and lasting impression upon the hearers.

Last night a good audience gathered again. The discourse was on "Regeneration," and was a simple, yet strong setting forth of this cardinal doctrine of the Christian faith.

A meeting of the members of the El Paso County club was held last evening that was very largely attended. The subject for discussion was the reorganization of the club. The club desires to make some very radical changes such as enlarging its directorship, etc., and can do so only by reorganizing. It was the vote of the club that at some future time "The El Paso County Club" disband. A new club will be organized to succeed the present club which will bear the name, "The El Paso Club." A caucus was afterwards held and a list of fifteen names selected who will incorporate the new club and be its trustees or stewards.

All the clergymen of the city on Sunday morning made addresses advocating the work of the Colorado Springs Aid society and urging liberal donations for its support. The collections taken will materially enlarge the society's exchequer, which is getting very low.

CRIPPLE CREEK ITEMS

The party of Montana experts who spent last week at the camp have returned, and it is rumored are prepared to purchase some of the properties that they examined.

The contract has been let for fifty foot shafts on the Little Mac and one other claim on Gold Hill belonging to the same parties. The deepest shaft in the district is only eighty feet.

Real estate is very active in both towns at present and prices going up rapidly.

An old prospector was exhibiting a specimen of ore taken from a claim on Beaver creek full of little nuggets that were unusually rich.

Work was begun yesterday on the Buena Vista lode. Three eight hour shifts will be worked and the owners expect to ship ore all winter.

Mr. Thomas Gough has put 1700 pounds of home made cream candy on sale in his two stores at 20 cents a pound.

Practical Charity.

Denver Times.

The Childs-Drexel Home for Union Printers is nearing completion at Colorado Springs. This practical charity will add fame and love to the names of its benevolent founders.

A NEW VERSION.

"Oh, mother, take the plaques away
And put them out of sight,
For I am almost tired to death,
I cannot paint tonight.
I'll tell you all about it if you'll listen mother, dear,
So come and sit down beside me on my little chair so near.

"You heard the wedding bells tonight,
His wedding bells they were;
I'm very glad they were not mine,
I'm glad he married her.
Oh, how can I live through it,
My heart's so full of cheer,
You tried so hard to catch him, but you couldn't, mother, dear.

"Miss Fribbang came among us
With her blushes sweet and fine,
With ruby lips and pearly teeth,
Far lovelier than mine.
Yes, they were manufactured; excuse this joyful tear,
She thought that she could fool him, and she did it, mother, dear.

"In vain you urged me, mother,
To put curlers on my hair
And wash my lips with oculine,
And blush of roses wear.
But to your kind entreaties I never would give ear,
They didn't cut a figure; no, they didn't, mother, dear.

"Peace to you, Mr. Moneybags,
And happiness for life;
I'd be an old maid all my days
Before I'd be your wife.
Now, mother, I will sober down, I am not crazy quite,
But please to take the plaques away, I cannot paint tonight."

—Pharmaceutical Era.

All the Same in English.

One of our fashionable clergymen received quite a shock to his æsthetic senses the other evening. He was informed that he was wanted in his study, where he found a young man and woman from the rural districts waiting to see him.

"Good evening," he said courteously; "what can I do for you?"

"You tell, Jemimy," said the man, nudging the girl.

"No, you tell, Sim," she giggled back.

"We've come to get hitched," said the man bashfully.

"What?" ejaculated the surprised clergyman. "I really don't understand you, my friend."

As the man sat dumb the girl ventured timidly:

"He means, sir, that we want to get spliced."

"I'm as much in the dark as ever," said the now bewildered minister; "will you kindly explain?"

The man scratched his head.

"We thought, Jemimy an me, we'd get tied."

Still the minister did not comprehend and Jemima took her turn.

"We've come to be jined."

"Ah, I understand—excuse me," said the minister, on whom the light of knowledge had just dawned, "you wish to be joined in the holy bonds of wedlock. Stand up."

And in five minutes they were hitched, spliced, tied and "jined" according to the laws of church and state.—Detroit Free Press.

Joy Unbounded.

He—My dear friend, have you read my last novel.

She—Yes.

He—How did you like it?

She—I laid down the volume with intense pleasure.—Truth.

A WINTER IN THE SOUTH

A winter in the South—the very words conjure up delicious memories for those who have been there. The bright sunny skies, the dry bracing air and the warm sunshine is a decided contrast to the cold bleak North.

The great State of Texas is celebrated as one great broad winter resort in itself, but the following places are, perhaps, particularly popular: Fort Worth, with its mineral baths, healthful climate and good hotels; Austin, the beautiful Capital City; San Antonio, one of the few really historical places in our country; Houston, with its blooming roses, oleanders and groves of oranges and lemons, and Galveston, with its delicious sea breezes. These are but a few of the delightful resorts of this highly favored region.

An escape from all the pains and discomforts of old Winter's weather transformed by magic from the region of snow and ice to the fragrance of this summer-land, is now made possible and easy by the Denver, Texas & Ft. Worth Branch of the Union Pacific System, which runs through Pullman Palace Sleepers between Denver, Ft. Worth, Dallas, Shreveport and New Orleans, and offers exceedingly low excursion rates to all Southern cities from Denver, Pueblo, Colorado Springs and Trinidad. For a full description of Southern winter resorts, reached over the Union Pacific System, or for excursion rates, apply to W. G. Rice, Union Pacific Ticket agent, office 14 Pike's Peak avenue, for a copy of the Union Pacific Winter Tours Folder.

BEAUTIFUL OKLAHOMA.

The opening indications of the two great openings of Oklahoma territory by home seekers, April 22, 1889 and September 22nd, 1891, have given that section deserved prominence as a place in which to cheaply obtain one of Uncle Sam's farms. The lands recently opened are located in the Old Iowa, Sac and Fox and Pottawattomie reservations lying directly east of Guthrie and Oklahoma City, on the A. T. & S. F. R. R. They now constitute counties "A" and "B" with Chandler and Tecumseh as respective county seats—both large and rapidly growing towns. Claims can be bought at reasonable figures. For the raising of corn, cotton, wheat and fruit, Oklahoma is unexcelled.

Write to G. T. Nicholson, G. P. & T. A., Topeka, Kan., or J. P. Hall, Colorado Passenger Agent, Denver, Colorado, for a specially prepared folder giving full information relative to Beautiful Oklahoma.

CALIFORNIA EXCURSIONS.

Leave Chicago via the Santa Fe Route every Thursday evening at 7:30 and Kansas City every Friday morning at 11:55 and arrive at La Junta every Saturday morning at 8:25. Parties from Colorado Springs desiring to join these can leave at 7:35 p. m., each Friday, remaining at La Junta over night or leave here at 2:40 a. m., Saturday, making connection at La Junta the same morning. These excursions are personally conducted by salaried agents who conduct the excursions to destination to give personal attention to the comfort of passengers, especially aged persons, ladies and children without escort. Leaving Colorado Springs at 2:40 a. m., Saturday, the passenger will arrive at Los Angeles at 2:45 p. m., the following Monday and at San Diego at 8:05 p. m.; at San Francisco the following Tuesday at 11:35 a. m. Inquire at city ticket office, Opera House block.

PARLOR CARS.

Our citizens who haven't tried those new parlor cars on the afternoon Santa Fe trains should do so. The cars are veritable parlors and the chairs as comfortable as the best parlor chair, not to be compared with the ordinary hair cars, something entirely new. Trains carrying these leave for Pueblo at 3:15 p. m. and for Denver at 3:20 p. m.

Attention is called to a change in the Santa Fe time table taking effect to-day, by which two additional trains are put on between Colorado Springs and Denver.

HOLIDAY TRAVEL.

A holiday excursion ticket makes an appropriate Christmas present. It fits any size stocking and suits any size purse.

The favorite Santa Fe Route has made a single fare round trip rate between all stations on its line in Colorado, including points on the Colorado Midland Railway; also to points outside of the State, within 200 miles of this place.

Tickets on sale Dec. 24th, 25th and 31st and Jan. 1st good until Jan. 4th returning.

THE GAZETTE.

Mrs. H. C. Collbran arrived at home yesterday morning from California.

A marriage license was granted John Gleason and Sarah Jane Blower, both of Florissant, yesterday.

The county grading outfit has gone to Florissant to put the Cripple Creek road into better condition.

Mr. Herbert Hagerman, now a student of Cornell college, arrived at home yesterday morning for the annual holiday visit.

Miss Dot Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Barnes, attending St. Mary's Episcopal seminary at Knoxville, Ill., arrived at home Sunday for the Christmas holidays.

E. F. Welles & Co. are exhibiting a handsome stock of riding whips and crops for the holidays. The handles are in silver, gold and ivory and are very suitable for Christmas presents for either ladies or gentlemen.

"Skipped by the Light of the Moon" will be the attraction at the opera house next Saturday evening. The play is full of songs, specialties and bright new music, which have been introduced for the present season tour.

An alarm of fire was turned in about 1 o'clock this morning and got the fire department out of bed in a hurry. The alarm was occasioned by smoke and sparks rolling out of the chimney over the Exchange bank.

Mr. S. M. Buzzard, the well known stock raiser of the eastern part of the state, is in the city for a few days. He says that his sheep suffered somewhat in the late snow storm and he lost a few, but generally they are coming through all right.

The J. C. King Grocery company has been disbanded, Mr. King retiring. Mr. W. A. Otis, the principal stockholder, assumes control and will place D. F. Emery, lately connected with the Shields-Morley Grocery company, in charge.

Mr. W. J. Foster has devoted a part of his time in the Rowe building to a very complete exhibition of Cripple Creek ores, including specimens from all the leading mines. There are also a number of fine photographs, taken in and around the camp.

Colorado Springs Chapter No. 6, R. A. M., meets this evening at 7:30 o'clock to install its newly elected officers. All companions visiting the city are cordially invited to be present. Let all the members be present, as there is much important work to be done.

Dr. Kennedy closed his revival services at the First Baptist church Sunday evening. The services, which lasted three weeks, have been most successful and will be of lasting benefit. The accessions to the church through the services number twenty-five or more.

The Catholic fair at Colorado City will commence next Tuesday evening and continue during the holidays. It will be held in the corner store of the Templeton block, where refreshments will be served and where fancy articles will be found on sale. The fair will be open every evening at 7:30 o'clock, and on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. The proceeds will be given to the church.

John K. Coulson died at the Glockner home yesterday morning of consumption. He was a plumber by trade and had worked for Mr. W. H. D. Merrill in this city. He was 44 years of age and had been a resident of Colorado for some time. The remains will be taken to Denver to-day for burial, the funeral being in charge of the Elks, of which the deceased was a member.

A double bill will be be presented at the opera house this evening—a one-act comedy entitled "Sunset" and "Dr. Bill." An exchange in speaking of the later play says: "'Dr. Bill' is a skilful adaptation from a French comedy. The adaptation was done by Hamilton Aide, an English playwright. It was produced in London, and the success achieved there was duplicated on the other side of the Atlantic. Without detailing the story, it may be said that the idea on which it is built is a quaintly humorous one, and it is developed through a series of highly amusing, though somewhat improbable complications. It was put together, however, chiefly for the purpose of laughter, and no one can deny that this purpose is triumphantly accomplished."
